2 pages

9/17/97
SB/F

As a reminder, we live in a capitalist system. What we want to do is not to perpetual capitalism, but to help develop social systems that will help sustain human life in accordance with natural laws. Even if we were to try to perpetual capitalism, we will find our selves like all others who lived under major social systems in different historical periods swept away by the social forces of change. All superpowers have their birth, development, and decline. Instead of using energy to perpetuate that which is in decline, I will use my energy to take that which have been developed as positive features in the subordinate relations of the old and use them as elements in the new.

Though we understand the history of capital accumulation, there is much to understand of some of the financial techniques created in the superstructure to help capitalism control the social antagonisms, which are personification of capital. (The capital markets are part of the superstructure of capitalism). Each major social system of history has its unique ideological operation or function as the signature of a specific ideological form of motion. In our case the tax system. Many of the financial techniques of US capitalism of post World War II are owed to the US tax system. The tax system came into being by the efforts of the industrial capitalists in preparation for the Civil War. From that period of history to this current day, US capitalism must have war and must have conflict to continue to exist. Under capitalism there can't be any peace, there must always be disunity, the wide spread disunity all the better. The wars and conflicts are artificially created. In nature and in human societies, there are and always will be conflict and disunity; this fact must be understood. But under capitalism, there are institutions whose mission is to constantly create conflict and disunity with the aim of increasing capital accumulation through market demands for goods and services. This fact is in keeping with the understanding of political economy. Due to national and international competition, capital must always be subsidized by the state for it is through layers and layers of tax schemes that the capital subsidy shell game is played. Everyone must play in the tax game for the same reason; but not all the people and companies are winners. Everyone is forced to play the tax game with possible deadly financial consequences. Those at the high point of the financial pyramid are forever protected. As a class, the capitalists use the state with the fear of international competition causing the lost of jobs and a weak economy to protcct their interest legislatively.

It isn't my intent to play in the capital markets as an investor nor look for investors. The center piecc of my plan is working with and through private companies to make investments in an overall plan for economic development. It isn't my intention to involve the government in any of my economic plans. Indirectly, the government will be connected in some form or another that will be beyond my control. In other words, I am not relying directly on the government for help.
What follows is the cornerstone of any economic plan that I will put forth:
I will contact multinational companies thru mail and by phone that are doing business in countries that we arc looking to do business in and ask them to invest in the general plan that will be presented. The same invitation will be extended to those companies that are not currently in exporting.
Investment and equity can take the following forms:

- pre agreement to lease a planned business office park
- pre agreement to have a facility designed and build
- set up a mortgage and or housing funds for their employees
- direct cash
- have available capital funds for business development that have a direct connection to value added supply and demand systems.
- companies can invest materials, equipment, tools, machinery, etc.

I believe I can persuade multinational companies to participate in one of the above form by reminding them that it is in their interest to do so for the common good of the local economy and social well being. I am sure that their participation will be motivated by how well the actual plan is presented.
In view of my plan, I see setting up an LLC and a consortium, maybe an LLP. I believe the maximum economic impact in the shortest time period is to create and form teams. This is why we should look for team players with specific aims and goals. I will be the person to start things rolling but I don't see my self as a one person operation. At the same time there should be flexible legal forms to create and implement special situations of need.